Improved solubility of indomethacin by the formation of eutectic mixtures with alpha- and beta-cyclodextrins. In order to improve the apparent solubility of indomethacin (IMC) in aqueous environments, a technique of complexing IMC with cyclodextrins (CD) was investigated in the present study. The complex formation of IMC with alpha- and beta-CD was studied by means of differential scanning calorimetry, X-ray diffractometry, and phase-solubility analysis. The analysis of phase-solubility diagrams indicated the formation of eutectic mixture with alpha- and beta-CD. Indomethacin forms complexes with both alpha- and beta-CD in water. The stoichiometry of complexation was 1:1 with a stability constant of  $5.78 \pm 0.29 \text{ M}^{-1}$  at 37 degrees C for alpha- and beta-CD, respectively. The phase-solubility diagrams of IMC and beta-CD in water were pH-independent at 37 degrees C, and the addition of alpha-CD increased the solubility of IMC slightly at pH 7.4.

Upon increasing temperature the stability constant of IMC-alpha-CD decreases to  $3.71 \pm 0.18 \text{ M}^{-1}$ , whereas the stability constant of IMC-beta-CD increases with temperature to  $15.71 \pm 0.54 \text{ M}^{-1}$ . In addition, the solubility of IMC is enhanced with increasing pH of the medium, and the maximum solubility for IMC is obtained at pH 5.7.
